FAQ

What is a night vision binocular?

A night vision binocular is a type of binocular that uses light-amplifying technology to enhance the ability to see in low-light conditions.

They are often used by people who want to see in the dark without using any artificial lights, such as law enforcement officers, first responders, and wildlife enthusiasts.

Night vision binoculars are different from traditional binoculars in two ways: magnification power and light amplification.

- Magnification - Traditional binoculars magnify the view on both sides of the binoculars, so you can see a bigger field of view. With night vision binoculars, magnification is only present on one side of the device. That side magnifies the view and lets you see a larger area. The other side isn't magnified at all, so you can see a narrower field of view. This is ideal for scanning an area for potential threats, as you can zoom in on one part and then scan the rest of the area.

- Light amplification - Traditional binoculars rely on light entering the device to be able to see. But at night, there isn't enough light to be able to see anything.

Who should buy night vision binoculars?

Anyone who wants to be able to see in the dark will find plenty of uses for night vision binoculars. They are great for outdoor enthusiasts, including campers, hikers, hunters and wildlife enthusiasts.

The ability to see in the dark without using any artificial lights is very helpful in a wide range of situations. You can use night vision binoculars to see what animals are in your yard at night without scaring them away. You can also use them to find injured or lost animals.

You can use them to watch your surroundings when power outages leave you in the dark. They are also handy for exploring at night and for stargazing.
